

SANITARY REPORTS.

Abstract Shows Smallpox In Twenty-One States of the Union.

CHOLERA RAGES IN RUSSIA.

No Varioloid at Yale University - Milwaukee the Greatest Sufferer From Smallpox - Nearly 400 Deaths in the Country From the Disease - General News of the Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON, April 1.-The abstract of sanitary reports as made by the surgeon general, shows the presence of smallpox in 21 states of the Union. Of the cities, Milwaukee has suffered most from this disease during the winter, recording 524 cases and 164 deaths. Philadelphia had 234 cases and 26 deaths; Chicago 240 cases and 44 deaths; Hot Springs, Ark., 118 cases and 27 deaths; Washington 51 cases and nine deaths; Detroit 81 cases and 26 deaths; St. Louis 105 cases and 35 deaths; New York 55 cases and 10 deaths. There appears to have been all told 373 deaths from smallpox in the United States during the winter.

Cholera In Foreign Countries.

Cholera is epidemic in many parts of Russia, and 39 different places are enumerated in which cases appeared from Jan. 4 to March 26. In Podolia alone in that period there were 2,031 cases and 867 deaths. Calcutta, India, 365 deaths and Constantinople 87 deaths. There is also more or less cholera in Argentina, Brazil, Belgium, Ceylon, France, Germany and Holland. The United States sanitary inspector at Rio Janeiro reports that cholera in the interior districts of Brazil is rapidly declining, owing to sanitary precautions, and of yellow fever says: "Though the weather is very hot and sultry, I hardly think there will be an epidemic this year, as the number of cases and deaths up to now are considerably less than usual. I do not remember a February as free from zymotic diseases as this one."

Yellow Fever Deaths.

Brazil reports a total of 137 deaths from yellow fever up to Feb. 23, 55 of which occurred at Santos from Feb. 9 to 23, out of a total of 75 cases in that time. In Cuba there had been 27 deaths and 74 cases up to March 17. There were a few cases at Vera Cruz, Mex.; Guayaquil, Ecuador; Puerto Rico, Salvador and Curacao, West Indies. The secretary of the Connecticut state board of health contradicts the report of the existence of varioloid at Yale University. It appears from a report of the secretary of the Kentucky board that an inspector who was sent to Floyd county to investigate the mysterious disease which recently appeared there found it to be spinal meningitis. There were 20 deaths from the disease out of a total of 25 cases.

Schooner Stranded.

WASHINGTON, April 1.-General Superintendent Kimball, of the life saving service has received a dispatch from Bodies Island, N. C., stating that the schooner Laura Nelson of Norfolk, on a fishing cruise, with a crew of 13 men, had stranded between that point and Nags Head. The crew was saved in surfboats and a dory, by the life saving men. The vessel is a total loss.

WASHINGTON, April 1.-General Thaddeus H. Stanton, recently appointed paymaster general of the army, has arrived here from Omaha. He will probably qualify for his new position today.

LIVED TO A MARVELOUS AGE.

St. Louis Man Who Was Believed to Be 140 Years Old Dies.

ST. LOUIS, April 1.-From the flat 2004 Washington avenue was held the funeral of Dr. William Hotchkiss, alleged to have been 140 years old. Dr. Hotchkiss' wife died about 16 years ago, and his only daughter, Margaret Hotchkiss, disappeared in February, 1886. With the demise of Hotchkiss the life of one of the strangest men that ever lived came to a close. Dr. J. A. Buck, living on Finney avenue, who was one of his warmest friends, says that his Masonic record has been traced back 100 years, showing conclusively that he was at least 121 years old, as he could not become a Mason under age. He had a special antipathy for good clothes, and is said to have not taken a bath for 25 years.

Will Pursue General Maceo.

MADRID, April 1.-The cruiser Rina Mercedes has sailed for the Bahamas. She will go thence in pursuit of General Maceo, the insurgent leader who is reported to have left Costa Rica for Cuba in command of a filibustering expedition. The Spanish minister at Washington is kept informed of the movements of the filibusters.

Officers from Texas are in Paducah, Ky., with warrants for the arrest of two cowboys who have been in that locality with a herd of horses. The officers claim the horses were stolen.

FRAZIER IN JAIL.

The Man Who Tipped Off the Holdup of a Train Arrested.

SOMERSET, Ky., April 1.-Sam Frazier, the man who tipped off the holdup of the Cincinnati Southern train Tuesday night, is now in jail here, having been arrested at the residence of James Owens, 20 miles west of this place, by Deputy Sheriff Sumpter. A warrant was sworn out by Daniel New before County Judge Catron for grand larceny and placed in Sumpter's hands, who soon located him, and Saturday at midnight arrived here and turned him over to Jailor Catron. New, who swore out the warrant, is related to the Morrises, and claims the horses used for the robbery belonged to Mrs. Morrow, while Frazier states he bought them from Jerry Morrow. It is doubtful if the charge can be sustained. Frazier was interviewed yesterday. He has been under the influence of liquor almost continuously since the attempted hold-up of the train.

It was not so, however, when he told the story of the holdup. He claims there were but four men in the job. John Underwood, the man implicated by Frazier, was seen at Cumberland Falls station yesterday, but soon returned to his home.

THEATRICAL MANAGER ARRESTED.

Charged With Jumping His Bond When He Left Butte.

DENVER, April 1.-Otto C. Floto, manager of the "Old Tennessee" company has been arrested in this city at the request of Detective Scott of Butte, Mon. The charge against Floto is perjury and the claim is made that he jumped his bond when he left Butte. His trouble in Butte was the result of a contest which took place last fall in Montana over the proposed removal of the state capital from Helena to Anaconda. Floto is said, registered too often. He was arrested and put under $1,500 bond. His case was set for March 24, the officers say, and he was not there to appear.

Floto said he had been in Helena almost a year. Seeing an opportunity to make some money he organized the "Old Tennessee" company and went on a tour with his company. He went from Butte to Anaconda, Salt Lake and finally reached Denver. He was apparently much surprised at being arrested.

FOR A WOMAN'S SAKE.

Joseph Nesbitt Lives the Life of a Recluse for Over 50 Years.

ELKTON, Md., April 1.-The property formerly belonging to Joseph Nesbitt, deceased, situated near Liberty Grove, has been sold. The tract consists of about 114 acres. The land came into Nesbitt's possession over 50 years ago, he being a young man of about 25. He was then paying attentions to a young lady of the neighborhood, and contemplated building a home for his prospective bride on the place. The match, for some cause, was broken off. The young lady took another partner for life, and the disappointed and expectant groom became a misanthrope and recluse, and such he continued until his death, about a year ago, at the age of 84. Among his idiosyncrasies was a determination not to allow the land to be cultivated, and in consequence the land has lain uncultivated for over half a century.

MISER'S HOARDINGS.

Relatives Have Succeeded In Unearthing Some of the Wealth.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., April 1.-Solomon Diehl, an aged bachelor, known as the Mahantonga miser, died a few days ago, and relatives immediately instituted a search for the gold he is supposed to have left. They have already found $4,000, and deposited this sum with the Shamokin Banking company. The money consisted of gold, silver and even copper pennies, that were stored in seven old stockings tied with straw and three old-fashioned pocketbooks, which were found in such out of the way places as under the floors, inside the walls and wainscoting, and in the barn. The relatives of the dead miser believe that he left a larger amount than this, and are still searching the premises for additional hidden wealth.

MOST HORRIBLE FIND.

Mutilated Remains of a Colored Woman Wrapped In Carpet.

LEGS HAD BEEN CUT OFF.

A Note Found In the Bundle-Strangled to Death By a Piece of Cheese Cloth-Apparently no Struggle Had Been Made-Deputy Coroner Says She Has Not Been Dead More Than Twenty-Four Hours.

NEW YORK, April 1.-One of the most mysterious murders committed in this city since the mutilated body of Old "Shakespeare" was found in a low resort near the East river front, for whose butchery the Algerian "Frenchy" is now serving a life sentence, was discovered yesterday morning.

The victim in this case was a young colored woman, whose dismembered body was found wrapped in pieces of carpeting and partially hidden from view in the rear of the building of the New York Bank Note company. How long the ghastly remains had been lying there is not known. As yet the police have no clue. The bundle in which the remains were found was bound with pieces of clothesline. Patrolman Kasimir put his hand inside and drew out the lower part of a human leg.

Both Legs Cut Off.

The body proved to be that of an unknown colored woman between 21 and 25 years old.

Around her neck was tied, in a double knot, a long piece of cheese cloth. This had been tied so tightly that it had caused strangulation and had forced the tongue to protrude from the mouth, and had been tied across her breast with a strong piece of cord by means of a slip knot. Her legs had been cut off just above the knees, and one of them lay on the top of the body with its foot toward her head, while the other was found underneath the body. Both members had been hacked off with a sharp ax or a butcher's cleaver.

The following words, so far as they could be made out, were found on a piece of note paper on the body:

March 23, Raw Way, N. J., James (Jane) E. Surindell, Raw Way, N. J.

Beneath was the word "Solomon," and also the word "Brother," while the word "ditto" was written between them.

There Had Been No Struggle.

At the stationhouse Deputy Coroner Donlin first removed the stout cord which bound the hands. He next unloosed the long piece of cheese cloth with which the woman had been choked to death. He found that this had been tied in a double knot and that it had been the direct cause of death. The other mutilations, he said, had been made after death had come. There was no blood on the woman's person and none on the light clothing she wore, which Dr. Donlin accounted for from the fact that she had been killed before she had been chopped up.

There was nowhere to be found any evidence of a struggle on the part of the woman. On the neck was an abrasion caused by the cloth with which she was strangled. The deputy coroner was positive that the woman had been dead not more than 24 hours before the body was found and that she had probably been dead not less than 14 hours, although the time might have been less. He said also that the woman had been a mother.

Wore a Plain Gold Ring.

Among the slight clues which may eventually lead to the identification of the body are those furnished by a plain gold ring the woman wore on the third finger of her right hand and by the fact that she wore a porous plaster on her left breast.

Two Happy Mothers.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., April 1.-Two sets of triplets have been born to ladies in this section recently. LIKE A ROMANCE.

Divorced From Her Convict Husband and Will Marry a Lawyer.

ATLANTA, April 1.-There is an interesting story connected with the engagement of Edith May Shields, to a Clarksville (Tenn.) lawyer, news of which has just reached here. A few years ago Miss Shields eloped with a son of H. T. Buckner, a millionaire merchant of New York and Tennessee, who was known on the stage by the name of Harcourt.

The story of Buckner's conviction of theft will be remembered as well as the fact that there was a strong indication that he went to prison rather than compromise the young woman whose property he was charged with stealing. When Harcourt (or Buckner) was sent to the penitentiary, much interest was manifested in his pretty wife, who made every effort to secure his pardon. She was taken care of by prominent people and remained for some time, going out to the convict camp to see her husband almost daily. It now transpires that Mrs. Harcourt has secured a divorce and her engagement to the Tennessee lawyer is announced.

CHICAGO LANDMARK ON FIRE.

The Times Building Damaged $70,000. A Number of Occupants Suffer.

CHICAGO, April 1.-The northern portion of the Times building, a 5-story stone structure, was damaged $70,000 by fire yesterday afternoon. At the early stages of the fire it looked very much as if this old landmark of Chicago would be destroyed and it was only by extremely energetic efforts that it was confined to the above place. The publishing rooms of The Journal of the American Memorial association were entirely burned out. Max Stern, printers and stationers, and half a dozen printing firms were also badly damaged. The quarters of The Freie Presse, a German daily paper, were thoroughly soaked out, but they have managed to put the premises into shape.

Perished While at Prayer.

WATERLOO, Ia., April 1.-"Grandma" Brown, an aged lady living near La Porte City, has been fatally burned. She was living alone, and before retiring she knelt near the stove to pray. A gust of wind blew the fire into her clothing, which was ablaze in an instant. She ran outdoors, screaming at the top of her voice and ran into a barb wire fence, which caught her clothes, rendering her helpless. By the time help reached her she was so seriously burned that she died a few hours later.

Resolved, That we will aid in its extension whenever and wherever we can, and that we believe the above mentioned bill a step in the right direction looking to complete prohibition, and that we particularly approve the section that provides for the privilege of voters of townships and wards to remonstrate against persons applying for license, and we will give our influence and help when such remonstrances are calculated to bring about a thorough canvass of the wards or townships with said remonstrance.

The past three days of spring weather have made the grass green and brought spring poetry dangerously near the par mark.

CRAWFORDSVILLE is to have a revival with magnificent features. A tent will be erected with a seating capacity for 4000. Rev. Chapman will do the work.

THE next legislature should pass a law, with an emergency clause, exempting newspaper men from the fool practice of being made April fools. Many a good reporter on this day is made to chase a phantom merely to satisfy the pleasantries of the day. Reporters shouldn't be in the game.

JUDGE MCGREGOR, at Brazil, has a splendid jury at this term of court. The jury enjoys the distinction of being a model in its despatch of business. The Brazil Times says: "There is no bickering no long speeches in the jury room for the purpose of hearing oneself talk and no haggling over minor points for the sake of protracting the case and increasing the salary of the jurors. They are business men and all juries should be made up of such material. This term of court has been an unprecedented one inasmuch as every criminal and civil suit, wherein the parties stood trial, the jury has decided in favor of the defendant, and no case has kept the jury in the jury room over one hour." Such a jury might be found here at next term and we believe it would be an innovation that would be joyfully hailed by both tax-payers and court officials.

THE BANNER TIMES sees no need of any rule from Rome forbidding Catholics belonging to the Knights of Pythias order. It is well known a man joins them he is assured that nothing in the order will conflict with his political or religious views. A compact is made to this effect that is as binding as any church obligation he could assume. We believe some misinformation has been sent to the pope at Rome on this question that will be regulated when Satolli's message recommending that the pope's order be recinded is received at the vatican. The fact that many Knights of Pythias are refusing to obey the order shows that the question is being thoroughly agitated over the country.

"COME into the garden mud," is a spring song some of our enterprising truck raisers are gleefully singing today. The small rain was welcome.

The Genuine Merit

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla wins friends wherever it is fairly and honestly tried. To have perfect health, you must have pure blood, and the best way to have pure blood is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier and strength builder. It expels all taint of scrofula, salt rheum and all other humors, and at the same time builds up the whole system.

BUNGLING BURGLARS

Rob a Grocery Store, and their Would-be Captors Bungle a Little.

On Saturday night Broadstreet's grocery store at the corner of Washington and Water streets was chosen as a point of attack by the enterprising burglars which strike our city periodically. The method of entrance to the store was novel. It is suspected that two tramps who had been about the store during the day did the work, and that one of them slipped unnoticed into the cellar, where he remained in hiding until night. His pal, as soon as the store was closed, raised a back window and slipped a bar from across the cellar door, letting burglar number one from his confinement. Burglar number two remained outside to watch, and he did a good job. Frank and Guy Burk were coming down street about 11:10, and the burglar on watch recognizing them, smashed the front window of the store to warn his pal. Conrad Gautier joined the Burk boys, and then a chase began which took in the surrounding streets and most of north Greencastle and part of Durham's woods. The pursuers had no weapons, though they made a bluff at the fellows, and were very close to them at various times. They sent word to Policeman Ashley, who assisted in the chase and subsequent search at the north end. Experience has proved, however, that when a burglar gets as far as the north depot with swag he always manages to get away with it. A better move would have been to have warned Marshal Starr, and then that officer would have taken a horse and buggy and driven east of the city and surrounded the fellows.

It seems the burglars had made arrangements to carry off a large amount of goods. They had loaded a valise full of knives and other valuables, but that was left in the store in their hurried flight. Mr. Broadstreet estimates his loss at fifteen dollars, mostly in cutlery, cigars and tobacco. The burglars ran north on Water street, thence west on Franklin, thence north on College avenue, thence to Durham's woods, where they sorted out their plunder. Various articles were scattered all along the line of march. The boys made a plucky chase, but erred in not going after the marshal.

Divorce Suit Compromised.

The suit of Rosa Hirt vs. Alfred Hirt, for divorce, has been compromised. The agreement was reached on Saturday. The case will be tried on Wednesday at Brazil, where it was taken on a change of venue. By the terms of the agreement the plaintiff, Mrs. Hirt, will on that date be given a divorce and the custody of her two children. In addition she is to receive from the defendant five thousand dollars alimony, in addition to the allowances heretofore made her by the court, and the defendant will pay all costs, including attorneys' fees on both sides of the case. The case is on the Clay county court calendar regularly docketed for the above mentioned date.

At Opera House April 6

The Windsor theatre was packed at both performances yesterday afternoon when John A. Fraser's new sensational melodrama received its initial production. The play is above the average of its class, and seemed to please the large audience present. The people presenting the play are well cast. The Train Wreckers affords ample opportunity for scenic and mechanical effects, which was taken advantage of by the management, the blowing up of the bridge and the escape from prison after it had been struck by lightning, being the principal events.—Chicago Times.

"GARDEN OF THE WORLD."

A Letter from Far Away California—Views from San Diego.

SAN DIEGO, California, 1895.

Editor BANNER TIMES:

The home paper has come regularly during my long absence. And always read with pleasure. Among its many items of interest one was particularly gratifying, the organization of "The Putnam County Historical Society." Such an institution should have been in existence long ago. Success to it! I have felt that another letter from this wonderful section of our country would be acceptable to your readers. San Diego lies 127 miles southwest of Los Angeles. You reach the city via "The Surf Line," passing through Anaheim, Santa Anna and Orange, all places of beautiful situations, and embracing interests to themselves and their adjacent surroundings, but of little interest to the tourist save the variety. About half way you come to "Capistrano," a beautifully constructed station, in imitation of the old mission for which it was named. Capistrano, or "San Juan" as it was called by the Franciscans, who with their leader, Padre Junipero Lera, built twenty-one extending from San Diego (St. James) to San Francisco. Many of them are in ruins. The one at Santa Barbara being in the best state of preservation, and under the control of the Franciscan order, all others Jesuit. "Capistrano" was enclosed by an adobe wall, and the building of the same material, that being the only sort used in that early Spanish day.

It was more pretentious than most of them. The Roman arches and decorations were of a higher type of architecture than was known here for nearly a century later. Some years ago it was overthrown by an earthquake, and quite a number killed, as it was the feast of "The Immaculate Conception," and mass was being held at the time. For years the virgin's statue remained with the wreath and veil about the head, as it had fallen. Although in ruins, it is picturesque, and reminds one of the efforts of those early fathers towards the education and religious culture of the natives. Helen Hunt Jackson, in her "Glimpses of Three Coasts," has greatly revived the public interest in the history of those early settlements of California. In a few moments you are whirled along, and suddenly—the grand old Pacific bursts upon your view, ever restless and surging. The tide was coming in, and the waves rolled up almost upon the car wheels, as if running a race with that mighty rival, the steam engine. For miles you are scarcely out of sight of the ocean until nearing San Diego. You suddenly dash into the mountains, through dark caverns, on defiles made by dynamite; or over yawning chasms with only a slender bar of iron between the onrushing train and the abyss below.

After a ride of four hours you reach San Diego. Here you miss the bustle of most railway stations, and almost feel that you have come to the end. But not so, you can continue down to Nation City by rail or by carriage, go into all parts of the country, or by steamer to Mexico or to any part of the world.

San Diego has greatly improved since '89, despite all the hindrances by the collapsing of the boom at that time. The hills are being built up, and rents are high. The court house is a fine building with pretty grounds. There are also many fine private residences. The old Spanish element is giving way to the resident of New England, middle or southern states, and even from many parts of Europe, also England. "Florence Height," a suburb, a few years ago, embraced but few houses, is now compactly built up, and Hotel Flor-

Tired, Weak, Nervous

Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Strength and Bodily Vigor.

The cause of that tired, weak, nervous condition in which so many people find themselves, is the failure of the blood to properly nourish the nerves and tissues. Feed the nerves upon pure blood, and they will be steady and strong. Read this: "It is with pleasure that I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as an excellent nerve tonic and blood purifier. I have taken it more than once and am taking it now. I was tired, my body ached, and I felt very badly all over. I was afraid I would be sick. I thought I would take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and

It Has Cured Me, and I find that it is cheaper than the doctor's bills. Hood's Pills are the best I have ever taken and I use no other. I am glad to have an opportunity to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. C. H. VENABLE, Keithsburg, Ill.

ence greatly enlarged for the entertainment of the many strangers, who get from its corridors a magnificent view of the ocean, bay and surrounding country, a privilege one should enjoy some time during a life time. An electric car passes every few minutes taking you miles beyond, where you have an entire view of "Mission Valley," and the remains of the first of those early missions. It has been repaired and is now used as a government Indian school. There are a number of excellent hotels in the city proper, among them "The Brewster," "Horton," "Albemarle" and others, always ready for the accommodation of the many people fleeing from our northern winters, some, simply for a few months, the fortunate many coming to stay. There is a great deal of building, an indication of thrift. Two of Gen. Grant's sons have fine residences upon "Florence Heights," and also own fine property in the principal part of the city, upon which good business blocks are being erected. The Spreckles Co. have a large ware house and wharf at which vessels are continually unloading coal from Mexico and Australia, cement from Liverpool, and lumber from Oregon and all northern Pacific points. The Santa Fe also has a large wharf where an extensive traffic is carried on, the material being conveyed to all interior places by teams, and through the lines of the Cal. Southern, a branch of the Santa Fe. Steamers are continually coming and going in the interests of the passenger traffic all along the coast, from Mexico to Victoria. The public schools of San Diego are a source of pride. Teachers command the highest salaries. The requirements for a certificate are of the most rigid character. There are excellent church buildings and large congregations. A great work is going on for the improvement of the many foreigners in their midst, especially the Chinese. The Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian have each Sunday and night schools for them.

This city has a great amount of private wealth, which if used rightly, would greatly advance the interests of the community; offer attractions to strangers and improve the surrounding country. There are here, however, some great natural features, that will always make it a place of interest to the tourist and citizen alike. The mountains are always here, grand and inspiring, and the beautiful bay. It has a landlocked harbor of twenty-eight miles, of the largest and most secure capacity. Vessels of the heaviest tonnage can anchor safely at the wharves. At times the bay is so calm, so blue, with the tall masts of the vessels rising in the clear air, and the many little fishing boats and yachts lazily lying upon the surface, skimming over the waves, or wildly dashing about when the storm or wind is on. The climate so perfect! No wonder it is called "the Italy of America." No where is such a spot to be found as the winter of '95 has developed. Those who have been here will verify the statement, those who have not ought to enjoy one pleasure during a life time.

The rains have come and nearly gone, all nature rejoices, and with the sunshine and flowers of all sorts blooming on all sides, it is a picture of beauty and a charm of comfort. The air is so balmy after eight a. m. you can go any where. Vegetables and fruits of all sorts are to be had, fresh and reasonable. The day is not distant when those in search of health, comfort and beauty will not seek southern France nor Italy but realize that within four days travel without change, the grandest of opportunities and benefits can be found, amidst the charming regions of San Diego and southern California.

Mrs. T. C. HAMMOND.

SHORT CUTS FOR IT.

Some of the Best News of the Day to be Found under This Head.

The DePauw quartette sang to a crowded house at Lawrenceburg on Friday night. Just as they were singing the last number a large fire broke out not more than a half-block away. The audience rushed out pell mell and the boys confess they had all kinds of queer feelings, for fear of a panic, but at the request of the cooler heads in the audience the number was sung to a finish.

The postal authorities at Washington have notified the sheriffs and police officers of the country that they will pay the following rewards during the year for the arrest and conviction of mail robbers: For robbing mail on mail car, $1000; for robbing mail carried over any other post route than railway, $500; for attempting to rob mail over any post route, $150, for robbing postoffice, from $100 to $200, according to the amount that is taken.

Among those attending the funeral of Mrs. O. W. Beckwith here yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Van Winkle, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bender, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bonnell, Miss Etta Frick, J. D. Decker, W. J. Fitzgerald, Dennis Daugherty and Dr. Joseph Eastman, of Indianapolis; Mrs. M. Y. Lacock, T. A. Connor, H. F. Houghton, of Kankakee, Ill.; C. S. Rhodes, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. G. S. McKee, E. M. #### Class Reunion.

The girls of the high school class of '94, entertained the boys of their class and their teachers at the home of Miss Susie Mathers, 406 west Liberty street, on Saturday evening from 8 to 10. They were assisted by Misses Jennie and Besie James. Elegant refreshments were served in the dining room by Misses Cullen and Hufford, who were charmingly attired in the class colors—salmon and sky blue. Dainty little souvenirs were presented each guest by the Misses James, who also favored the company with a beautiful duet. Sweet music was dispersed throughout the evening making the entertainment all the more delightful. The class enjoyed being together once more so much that they have decided to make the event an annual one, at least so long as enough members of the class can be gathered together for such a meeting. The guests departed feeling that the girls of '94 had just the right kind of class spirit to keep their class bound together with bright and golden links.

CHILDREN'S ATTIRE.

WHAT THE LADS AND LASSES ARE WEARING.

From Three Years to Ten Picturesque Effects Are Sought—From Ten to Sixteen Simplicity Is the Rule—Hints For Older Girls—Boys' Suits.

It is a comparatively easy matter to dress babies and children from 3 to 10 years old, after which last named age the trouble begins. Infants' long robes are understood by even inexperienced young mothers, and the convenient guimpe waists and empire frocks make things comparatively easy, so far as the costuming of little girls is concerned, until the tenth birthday is past. Then the awkward period is at hand. Wise mothers understand that this undeveloped period is best met with simple costumes. Elaborate dresses only serve to accentuate the imperfections of the oval and angular figures of misses of 10 to 14 years of age.

Some of these older girls are beginning to wear the tailor frocks made with skirt and coat, but this style is not becoming to many, as the figures are too undeveloped and awkward. As a rule, dresses made with plain full skirts and waists will be found more becoming.

A PRETTY DRESS FOR YOUNG GIRL.

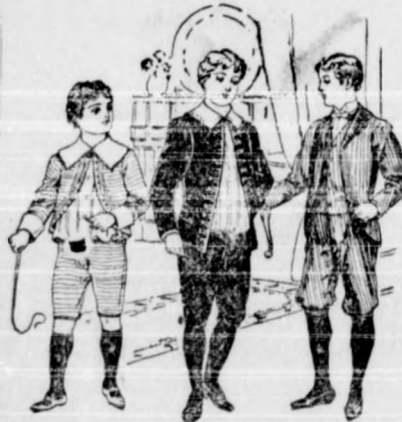

Serviceable for school wear are the chevrons, mixed tweeds and serges, while for more dressy occasions there are the crepons, challies and india silks. For school wear the sailor dress is much worn by girls. It is made with full skirt, generally plaited. The blouse is in every respect exactly like a boy's, but the vest piece has generally a band around the neck, which makes it vastly more becoming.

The simple dresses may be rendered quite smart by the addition of broad lace shoulder capes and satin ribbon. When a tailor gown is preferred for girls of 14 to 16, an appropriate pattern is what is known as an English jacket. This is, in point of fact, a three box plaited affair, the plaits running lengthwise and the jacket belted.

Cloaks for children under 12 are either long enough to cover the dress or very short in the reefer style. The long coats are cut half fitting, with a flaring skirt, or with a full skirt fastened to a waist and worn with one, two or three capes. Rough and smooth cloths are both used. The cloth coats are often entirely of any trimming and depend entirely on the beauty of material and faultless cut for the look of style. The rough cheviot coats, like peajackets, are smart little affairs worn with school dresses, and like the boys' short coats, are particularly good for play and to wear when walking, as the long coats are somewhat heavy.

Boots without heels are worn by little girls, the spring heel until they grow older. Kid boots, with patent leather trimmings, and cloth and kid, with patent leather tips for dress wear, are the proper footwear. Slippers and short socks are only worn by very small girls, to whom also are relegated colored shoes to match the colored sashes.

The little Lord Fauntleroy style predominates in suits for the small boy on dressy occasions. A very attractive object is the little man when clad in a jaunty suit of velvet worn over a silk shirt with turndown collar. Sometimes these shirts are white, but colored ones are also worn with these suits. This Fauntleroy style is also carried out in less expensive material, as corduroy or velveteen. Cavalier suits, in corduroy, with silk plaited skirts; highland dresses, with their accompanying ornaments, and the more practical sailor clothes rival each other in popularity.

A dress suit for a boy of 7 to 10 years is made in black twill, with a vest and round coat, which has a silk faced collar. The knee trousers are met with cashmere hose. A white linen shirt and white necktie are worn with this suit. Other suits are of blue or dark green cloth, handsomely braided with black.

A pretty suit for a boy who is about to wear his first pair of trousers is the three piece suit. The jacket and trousers are of cloth and the blouse of flannel or silk or linen as seems most desirable. The jacket to this suit is sometimes outlined with braid. ALICE VARNUM.

SKETCHES OF LINCOLN.

His Attempt to Make a Lawyer of Himself.

A BOOK HIS CONSTANT COMPANION.

Why He Loved a Story—His Deficiency as a Salesman—How He Kept His Head Above the Waves of Destitution—A Surveyor Under Calhoun.

From "The Life of Lincoln" by William H. Herndon and Jesse W. Weik. Copyright, 1885, by Jesse W. Weik. Copyright, 1892, by D. Appleton & Co.] VII

That Lincoln's attempt to make a lawyer of himself under adverse and unpromising circumstances excited comment is not to be wondered at. Russell Godby, an old man who still survives, told me in 1865 that he had often employed Lincoln to do farm work for him and was surprised to find him one day sitting barefoot on the summit of a wood pile and attentively reading a book. "This being an unusual thing for farmhands in that early day to do, I asked him," relates Godby, "what he was reading. 'I'm not reading,' he answered. 'I'm studying.' 'Studying what?' I inquired. 'Law, sir,' was the emphatic response. It was really too much for me as I looked at him sitting there proud as Cicero. 'Great God Almighty!' I exclaimed and passed on."

But Lincoln kept on at his studies. Wherever he was and whenever he could do so the book was brought into use. He carried it with him in his rambles through the woods and his walks to the river. When night came, he read it by the aid of any friendly light he could find. Frequently he would down to the cooper's shop and kindle a fire out of the waste material lying about, and by the light it afforded read until far into the night.

Preliminary Practice.

One of his companions at this time relates that "while clerking in the store or serving as postmaster he would apply himself as opportunity offered to his studies, if it was but five minutes' time; would open his book, which he always kept at hand, study it, reciting to himself; then entertain the company present or wait on a customer without apparent annoyance from the interruption. Have frequently seen him reading while walking along the streets. Occasionally he would become absorbed with his book; would stop and stand for a few moments, then walk on, or pass from one house to another, or from one crowd or squad of men to another. He was apparently seeking amusement, and with his thoughtful face and ill fitting clothes was the last man one would have singled out for a student."

It was not long until he was able to draw up deeds, contracts, mortgages and other legal papers for his neighbors. He figured conspicuously as a pettifogger before the justice of the peace; but, regarding it merely as a kind of preliminary practice, seldom made any charge for his services. Meanwhile he was reading not only lawbooks, but natural philosophy and other scientific subjects.

It has been denied as often as charged that Lincoln narrated vulgar stories, but the truth is he loved a story, however extravagant or vulgar, if it had a good point. If it was merely a ribald recital and had no sting in the end—that is, if it exposed no weakness or pointed no moral—he had no use for it either in conversation or public speech, but if it had the necessary ingredients of mirth and moral no one could use it with more telling effect. As a mimic he was unequalled, and with his characteristic gestures he built up a reputation for story telling, although fully as many of his narratives were borrowed as original, which followed him through life. One who listened to his early stories in New Salem says: "His laugh was striking. Such awkward gestures belonged to no other man. They attracted universal attention, from the old sedate down to the schoolboy. Then in a few moments he was as calm and thoughtful as a judge on the bench and as ready to give advice on the most important matters. Fun and gravity grew on him alike."

As a salesman Lincoln was lamentably deficient. He was too prone to lead off into a discussion of politics or morality, leaving some one else to finish the trade which he had undertaken. One of his employers says: "He always disliked to wait on the ladies, preferring, he said, to wait on the men and boys. I also remember he used to sleep on the store counter when they had too much company at the tavern. He wore flax and tow linen pantaloons—I thought about five inches too short in the legs—and frequently had but one suspender, no vest or coat. He wore a calico shirt, such as he had in the Black Hawk war; coarse brogans, tan color; blue yarn socks and straw hat, old style and without a band." His friend Ellis attributed his shyness in the presence of the ladies to the consciousness of his awkward appearance and the unpretentious condition of his wearing apparel. It was more than likely due to pure bashfulness. "On one occasion," continues Ellis, "while we boarded at the tavern, there came a family, consisting of an old lady, her son and three stylish daughters, from the state of Virginia, who stopped there for two or three weeks, and during their stay I do not remember Mr. Lincoln's ever appearing at the same table with them."

As a society man Lincoln was singularly deficient while he lived in New Salem and even during the remainder of his life. He never indulged in gossip about the ladies nor aided in the circulation of village scandal. For woman he had a high regard, and I can testify that during my long acquaintance with him his conversation was free from injurious comment in individual cases—freer from unpleasant allusions than that of most men.

While wooing that jealous eyed mistress, the law, Lincoln was earning no money. As another has said, "He had a running board bill to pay and nothing to pay it with." By dint of sundry jobs here and there, helping Ellis in his store today, splitting rails for James Short tomorrow, he managed to keep his head above the waves. His friends were firm—no young man ever had truer or better ones—but he was of too independent a turn to appeal to them or complain of his condition. He never at any time abandoned the idea of becoming a lawyer. That was always a spirit which beckoned him on in the darkest hour of his adversity.

Some one, probably a Democrat who voted for him in the preceding fall, recommended him to John Calhoun, then surveyor of the county, as suitable material for an assistant. This office, in view of the prevailing speculation in lands and town lots, was the most important and possibly the most profitable in the county. Calhoun, the incumbent, was a Yankee and a typical gentleman. He was brave, intellectual, self possessed and cultivated. He had been educated for the law, but never practiced much after coming to Illinois; taught school in preference. As an instructor he was the popular one of his day and age. I attended the school he taught, when I was a boy, in Springfield, and was in later years clerk of the city under his administration as mayor. Lincoln, I know, respected and admired him. After Lincoln's removal to Springfield they frequently held joint debates on political questions. At one time, I remember, they discussed the tariff question in the courthouse, using up the better part of two evenings in the contest. Calhoun was polite, affable and an honest debater, never dodging any question. This made him a formidable antagonist in argumentative controversy. I have heard Lincoln say that Calhoun gave him more trouble in his debates than Douglas ever did, because he was more captivating in his manner and a more learned man than Douglas.

But to resume. The recommendation of Lincoln's friends was sufficient to induce Calhoun to appoint him one of his deputies. At the time he received notice of his selection by Calhoun, Lincoln was out in the woods near New Salem splitting rails. A friend named Pollard Simmons, who still survives and has related the incident to me, walked out to the point where he was working with the cheering news. Lincoln, being a Whig and knowing Calhoun's pronounced Democratic tendencies, inquired if he had to sacrifice any principle in accepting the position. "If I can be perfectly free in my political action, I will take the office," he remarked, "but if my sentiments or even expression of them is to be abridged in any way I would not have it or any other office." A young man hampered by poverty as Lincoln was at this time, who had the courage to deal with public office as he did, was certainly made of unalloyed material. No wonder in after years, when he was defeated by Douglas, he could inspire his friends by the admonition not to "give up after one nor one hundred defeats."

Honors were now crowding thick and fast upon him. On May 7, 1833, he was commissioned postmaster at New Salem, the first office he ever held under the federal government. The salary was proportionate to the amount of business done. Whether Lincoln solicited the appointment himself or whether it was given him without the asking I do not know, but certain it is his "administration" gave general satisfaction.

Nature's Stamp of Greatness.

No little of Lincoln's influence with the men of New Salem can be attributed to his extraordinary feats of strength. By an arrangement of ropes and straps, harnessed about his hips, he was enabled one day at the mill to astonish a crowd of village celebrities by lifting a box of stones weighing near 1,000 pounds. There is no fiction either, as suggested by some of his biographers, in the story that he lifted a barrel of whisky from the ground and drank from the bung, but in performing this latter almost incredible feat he did not stand erect and elevate the barrel, but squatted down and lifted it to his knees, rolling it over until his mouth came opposite the bung. His strength, kindness of manner, love of fairness and justice, his original and unique sayings, his power of mimicry, his perseverance, all made a combination rarely met with on the frontier. Nature had burned him in her holy fire and stamped him with the seal of her greatness.

In the summer of 1843 Lincoln determined to make another race for the legislature, but this time he ran distinctly as a Whig. He made, it is presumed, the usual number of speeches, but as the art of newspaper reporting had not reached the perfection it has since attained we are not favored with even the substance of his efforts on the stump. I have Lincoln's word for it that it was more of a handshaking campaign than anything else.

The election took place in August. Lincoln's friend, John T. Stuart, was also a candidate on the legislative ticket. He encouraged Lincoln's canvass in every way, even at the risk of sacrificing his own chances. But both were elected. The four successful candidates were Dawson, who received 1,390 votes, Lincoln 1,376, Carpenter 1,170 and Stuart 1,164.

At last Lincoln had been elected to the legislature and by a very flattering majority. In order, as he himself said, "to make a decent appearance in the legislature," he had to borrow money to buy suitable clothing and to maintain his new dignity. Coleman Smoot, one of his friends, advanced him "$200, which he returned," relates the generous Smoot, "according to promise." Here we leave our rising young statesman to take up a different but very interesting period of his history.
